

12,000 DAIRY PEOPLE FLOCK TO FIELD DAY

Huge Crowd is Disappointed When Neither Lowden nor Blaine Appear

Farmers of Outagamie-co who missed the big field day Wednesday on the John Erickson Holstein farm at Waupaca will have to get under cover to escape the "I-told-you-so brigade," for they are likely to hear the echo for several days. The county was very well represented at that in spite of the threatening weather. The enthusiasm they brought back with them from the celebration augurs well for the county Holstein Friesian breeders' sale in Appleton Friday.

It is estimated by officials of the Waupaca Holstein breeders' association that no fewer than 12,000 people attended the festival on the Erickson farm. An unofficial count gave the number of automobiles parked there as 2,500, representing a wealth of practically $2,500,000. Breeders admitted that the automobile has been a great asset to their business, having brought associates closer together and the very word to their door. Without this modern method of transportation, not one-tenth of the people could have been brought together.

But here were large delegations from Waupaca, Winnebago, Portage, Wood, Marathon, Clark, Outagamie counties, but the largest by far from the home county of Waupaca, itself which turned out to do homage to the premier Badger Holstein dairy farmer and help celebrate his twenty-fifth anniversary as a pure bred Holstein-Friesian breeder, and incidentally to inspect his world famous herd of cows. Elaborate entertainment and impressive addresses helped to make this occasion utterly surpass the Field Day held on the same farm two years ago.

START FROM APPLETON

The Outagamie co. delegation assembled at the First National bank here Wednesday morning and received their badges advertising the county. It was 9:45 before the procession led by Paul N. Hrus, county farm agent, was underway. At Dale another large group of automobiles attached itself to the column. It was found, however, that a number of others had already preceded them earlier in the morning.

Waupaca, which itself the potato capital and Holstein dairy center, did its best to make the visitors feel at home. The city civic and commerce association, which cooperated with the Waupaca-co. Holstein Friesian association in conducting the celebration, had its cards of welcome and guide marks all along the way that led past the picturesque "Chickadee Lake."

At the Erickson farm, seven miles out of Waupaca, a big crowd was forming. Boy Scouts directed the parking of cars. An information bureau and registration booth was set up.

DAUGHERTY HOLDS CONTRACTS INVALID

Exclusive Rights to Purchase Government Power Plant Interests Denied

By Associated Press
Washington—An opinion by Attorney Daugherty submitted to Secretary Weeks and forwarded Thursday to the house military committee holds that the contract executed by the government with the Alabama Power company is "invalid" with respect to the provision, which the power company officials contend gives them the right of exclusive purchase of the government's interests in the steam power plant at Gorges, Alabama.

The contract negotiated by the war department with the Air Nitrates corporation of New York, a subsidiary of the American Cyanamid company under which nitrated plant number 2 was constructed at Muscle Shoals, Ala., also is held "invalid" by the attorney general with regard to the option of exclusive purchase claimed by the corporation in the event the plant ever is disposed of by the government to private enterprises.

The tax will amount to $7,116,219, a decrease from $7,278,816 in 1921.

END OF BUSINESS DEPRESSION NEAR

(By Associated Press)
Washington—A picture of steadily reviving business activity is drawn by Secretary Davis in a statement Thursday based on reports of employment conditions to the department of labor. The reports indicate that unemployment has been eliminated or materially reduced in most states. The secretary said the Swan Song of business depression has given way to a cheerful note of improved industrial activity in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan and Illinois.

WOODSMEN FIND BEAR MORE THAN GOOD MATCH

By Associated Press
Hibbing, Minn.—Two wood haulers are treating numerous sores and scratches as the result of a tussle with a bear. The men, James Kinney and Ole Hendrickson, while loading wood on the Sturgeon River 20 miles north of here, saw brown start to swim the river. They grabbed his legs and tried to drown the animal. After a ten minute struggle they were perfectly willing to let go. The bear resumed his swim while the men came home for treatment.

ULTIMATUM TO RAILROADS ON CUT IN RATES

Roads Asked to Decide On Acceptance of Commission's Ruling By May 31

THORN TO ADMINISTRATION

Carriers Question the Power of Interstate Commission on the Matter

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1922, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington. American railroads have been given an ultimatum by the Interstate Commerce commission. They are asked to decide by May 31 whether they will accept without formal order the findings of the commission for reduced freight rates or whether they will resist the decision in the courts.

President Harding admits that his efforts to persuade the railroad executives at the dinner last Saturday night to accept the cut voluntarily has not borne fruit. On top of that statement comes the announcement of the Interstate Commerce commission's decision reached on May 16 four days before the White House dinner, but not made public until Wednesday. The two moves are in sequence and are made with the hope that public opinion will manifest itself in the next few days and convince the railroads that their own best interests as well as those of the country lie in going along with the Interstate Commerce commission's finding.

The railroads can of course take the case all the way to the Supreme court of the United States because the transportation act provides that the railroads shall have a fair return on their property and no testimony has been taken to prove whether the proposed cut would enable the railroads to earn such a return.

The whole controversy which has been a thorn in the side of the Harding administration from inauguration day because the agricultural and shipping interests have been prodding constantly for lower rates has reached a point of definite action with the administration. Mr. Harding gave the impression to the Washington correspondents a week ago that he was summoning the railroad executives because the Interstate Commerce commission couldn't formulate policies but could act on facts as presented in the regular form. While it is true that the present decision is the outgrowth of the Interstate Commerce commission's own initiative, it is significant that the commission doesn't share the view as to its limitations on matters of policy. The commission's decision says for instance:

COMMENT ON POWERS

"The carriers take the position that we must be guided solely by those things which are definite and certain in the past. With this we cannot agree. Our function under the law is not that of mere computers and cannot thus be atrophied. The duty to prescribe rates for the future carries with it the obligation to exercise an informed judgment upon all pertinent facts, present and past, in order to forecast the future as the best we may."

The Interstate Commerce commission now says that since rates of pay for employees have been reduced by $350,000,000 a year the tendency is "toward increased revenues, lower costs and higher income for the carriers." The commission says, more over, that it "does not accept the adjustment made by carriers in their constructive year as correct or complete."

The same being an estimate of 4.89 per cent upon the value of their property instead of the five and one-half per cent guaranteed them by the transportation act.

The railroads have it in their power to help the administration's objective—normalcy—or to retard it. Resident Harding has tried by personal conference to bring railroads to his viewpoint. The Interstate Commerce commission now has put the case before the court of public opinion.

Dad's Purse Hit Too Hard By U. W. Dances

Madison, Wis.—Dancing costs. University of Wisconsin students, members of fraternities and societies nearly $100,000 each year. S. H. Goodnight, dean of the men estimated today from reports made by social organizations.

Just what the hundreds who attend dance halls spent for their pleasure, he is unable to say, but it is thought to amount to even more than for fraternity affairs.

The home folks should commence to consider these expenditures of their sons and daughters on luxuries, which are no required part of a University course, Dean Goodnight believes. He does not feel that the institution should impose restrictions.

Formal parties given by social organizations during the last semester cost $18,000, the dean said, an average cost of $471 each.

Estimates show that the average cost to individual students from outside Wisconsin for a college education at the state university is $900 each year. Some students are said to spend much more, some less.

U. S. AND CANADA GET TOGETHER ON TIDEWATER CANAL

Hughes Says This Government is Ready to Begin Waterway Negotiations

By Associated Press
Washington—The state department announced today that it had communicated to the Canadian government its willingness to begin negotiations in connection with the St. Lawrence canal project to permit steam going vessels to reach the Great Lakes. No answer has yet been received from the Canadian government.

Secretary Hughes dispatched his note on the subject on May 17 to the British ambassador who is understood at the state department to have forwarded the communication promptly to the Canadian government.

The note, the department's announcement stated, "that the United States government would be glad to take up with the Canadian government the negotiations of a treaty looking to the deepening of the waterways which would enable ocean ships to reach the Great Lakes."

CONDEMNED NEGRO SMILES IN JAIL

Escapes From Mob By Leaping From Speeding Auto—Captured by Hounds

By Associated Press
Macon, Ga.—Jim Denson, Negro youth, whose appeal from a death sentence was carried without avail to the supreme court and who earlier this week narrowly escaped lynching at the hands of a mob, was today in Bibb County's "Mob Proof" jail.

"I see who's mighty proud to be here" was Jim's smiling comment even though the sentence to be hanged June 16 for an alleged attack on an aged white woman three years ago, still stares him in the face. Jim, however, had some reason to smile beyond his escape from the mob, he caused numerous white people in this and Wilkinson county, believing his escape was an act of Providence were considering an appeal to Gov. Harwick for commutation to life imprisonment.

The Negro told the story of his escape in a run as follows: "They laid a rope around my neck. Then they dragged me into the auto mobile. I heard them say they would shoot me just out of town. The knot on the rope around my neck was choking me. I untied it. The automobile was going 30 miles an hour and I says to myself, 'Jim, jump or be killed.' I jumped first and rolled into the ditch."

The Negro said he obtained bread from another Negro at sun up and then crawled into a swamp where he spent the day and night.

He was found this morning by a sheriff's posse which tracked him with the aid of bloodhounds.

Anti-Saloon League Advocates Deportation of Aliens Violating Liquor Law

Milwaukee—Existing prohibition legislation goes as far as restricting "home brew" as is thought wise at this time, according to Wayne R. Wheeler, general counsel for the anti-saloon league, speaking before the district conference of the league which opened Tuesday.

Mr. Wheeler outlined for the conference pending and recent federal legislation and discussed its possible result and the attitude of the league. No one offered to advocate prescription of "home brew."

The national organization and state organizations of the anti-saloon league in eleven states were represented at the conference. The W. C. T. U. was also represented. The total attendance being about fifty.

Bishop Thomas Nichols, Chicago, presided. Among the legislative bills scheduled to be presented by Mr. Wheeler were those:

Deportation of aliens for violation of the liquor and narcotic laws extension of the jurisdiction of United States officers outside the three mile zone at sea, possible amendment of the corrupt practice act to include state organizations of the league, placing of the alcoholic content of patent medicines on bottles, reorganization of the federal food and medicinal act, concentration of liquor in fewer warehouses.

Officials and members of the Wisconsin anti-saloon league had lunch at the City Club today where plans for the campaign in Wisconsin were discussed. The conference, which will continue until Friday night, is the first of six similar national conferences of the league forces.

PREMIER WARNS GERMANY AGAINST ARMING RUSSIA

Lloyd George Discusses Genoa Conference in Debate in Commons

London—In speaking of the possibility of the rearming of Russia with German assistance, Premier Lloyd George said in the house of commons Thursday emphasizing each word, "I hope the occasion may never arise making it necessary to go back and refer to the warning I am uttering."

Germany, said the premier, could not rearm Russia, economically not having the capital, but that was not the case with armaments, as there was every natural resource in one country and complete technical skill in the other.

The Genoa conference formed the text for the debate with the premier ready to point to its achievements, such as the agreement for a truce, and the economic having for one thing the Russian German treaty as the basis for criticisms of the happenings at Genoa.

The premier, after reviewing the objects of the conference said that in regard to the question whether the conference had succeeded he would simply state the facts fairly and let the members judge them fairly.

Although peace had been established in Europe, it was quite clear, said Mr. Lloyd George that the war atmosphere to a certain extent remained.

Charles R. Crane Charged With Inciting Trouble in French Mandate Territory

U. S. WILL INVESTIGATE Charge Political Prisoners in Syria Subjected to Cruel Treatment

Chicago—Sentence of 30 years in prison on a charge of inciting recent disturbances in French mandate territory in Syria has been meted out to Charles R. Crane of Chicago by a French military court in Damascus, according to a copyrighted dispatch from Cairo, published Thursday in the Chicago Daily News. The dispatch is based on reports published in an Arabic newspaper received in Cairo.

These reports, according to the Daily News despatch, say the military court passed the sentence "after a hearing by default, (that is in the absence of the accused)."

"A notice in the newspapers" the despatch continues, "quoting the official communication adds that the American government has been notified of the verdict."

"While Mr. Crane in the course of his travels avoids France and the French possessions, there is little possibility that the sentence will be carried out."

ABUSE PRISONERS

"According to the newspapers, the court held that Mr. Crane was equally responsible with numerous Syrians who are serving terms in prison on account of the outbreak."

"Reports from Syria are that political prisoners are obliged to sleep on the jail floor and to subsist on dry bread and olives."

"Miss Tweetch Rahwandji, 15 years old, was recently arrested in Damascus because she was a pupil of Miss Nazid Aabel, a Moslem teacher involved in the disturbances. Miss Aabel was one of the women selected by Mr. Crane to receive educational benefit in the United States. His check for $1,000 to defray her traveling expenses prompted the charge that the American government was subsidizing the Syrian malcontents."

INQUIRY BY FRENCH

Washington—The French government has been asked by the French government of the state department as to the precise status of Charles R. Crane, who for the past six months has been conducting an inquiry into conditions in the near east. The state department, it was learned Thursday, has replied that Mr. Crane was acting entirely on his own initiative and authority and was without any government commission.

Recently Mr. Crane was heard from, from Syria where he was said to be making an inquiry into conditions of the Arabian and the Turkish population. The attention of the French government was soon attracted to Mr. Crane's activities. Although French officials expressed the belief that it could not be said that he was inciting the natives to resist against the French military forces occupying Syria under terms of the treaty of Sevres, they regarded his presence as highly unusual.

CRANE IS IN PARIS

Paris—Charles R. Crane, who is reported to have been condemned by a French military court to 20 years imprisonment is stopping at a Paris hotel. When he was seen at his hotel Thursday afternoon he was asked concerning his condemnation but refused to say anything in regard to the Syrian situation adding that he was making an effort to do something regarding it.

Mr. Crane has not been under arrest or surveillance. When he goes out of the hotel, he moves about entirely unobserved by the authorities.

ELECT BACHMAN AS DELEGATE TO LABOR MEETING

Appleton Will be Represented at State Labor Federation Convention

Fred Bachman, city treasurer, Wednesday evening was elected by the Appleton Trades and Labor council as its delegate to the convention of the State Federation of Labor in Oshkosh July 15 to 22. William Egger will be the alternate delegate. Individual labor unions will elect their own representatives. A large number of unaffiliated union men are expected to attend some of the sessions.

The convention will be held in the municipal clubhouse. An attendance of about 350 is expected. The Oshkosh committee is now at work on a tentative program. Matters of state and perhaps national importance will be brought up. The convention will refrain from discussion of politics, according to A. J. Arnold of Oshkosh, secretary of the committee on arrangements, although at the close of the last convention at Manitowish there was said to be some talk of forming a third party.

"The unions want to steer clear of politics," said Fred Bachman, local labor leader and president of the Farmer-Labor Progressive league in Outagamie county. "That is one of the reasons for organizing the farmer-labor league. The matter can be handled best that way."

Dry forces are curious to know what action may be taken on the beer and light wine question. Beer and wine was endorsed at the last convention, but it is possible that it will come up for discussion again.

A banquet or boat ride and perhaps an automobile ride through Oshkosh will form a part of the entertainment, according to present plans. Efforts also are being made to arrange an athletic event, such as a wrestling or boxing event. One evening will be devoted to a public massmeeting.

PYTHIANS DECLARE FOR LAW AND ORDER

Appleton lodge No. 113 of the Knights of Pythias has declared for law and order. Hearty approval was given at a recent meeting of the lodge of the proclamation issued to all grand and subordinate lodges by Al. Fred Reed, supreme chancellor, calling for more reverence for law. The support of every member was promised to secure better law enforcement.

The proclamation refers to a "wide spread disregard for law" and states that "reckless individuals who seek extraordinary gains from unlawful transactions" and others "who resort to interference with their own ideas of personal liberty, are said to be joining in one vast unorganized conspiracy" to hinder law observance. It is feared that eventually each individual will obey only such laws as conform to his ideas of fitness, and individual tyranny will be the natural result.

They who pride themselves on being a self-governed people, must demonstrate that they can hold their individual desires in restraint in order that the general good of the country may be advanced," it is urged.

MOOSE COMMITTEE IS PLANNING CONVENTION

The committee also will discuss plans for participating in dedication of the Wisconsin Memorial building at Mosesheart during the national Moose convention late in August.

12,000 DAIRY PEOPLE FLOCK TO FIELD DAY

Under the supervision of the civic and commerce association. A concert was given by the New London band, sent to the farm by New London business men. There were the usual luncheon tents and light refreshment stands. A larger tent had also been erected. It could hardly have been intended for an auditorium, as it would not accommodate one-tenth of the people. Luckily, it did not rain.

Community singing formed a part of the afternoon program. A separate program for boys and girls, consisting of games, songs and talks on boys and girls dairy club work was under the direction of T. L. Beurick, state leader in boys and girls club work.

CHIEF SPEAKERS ABSENT
Former Governor F. O. Lowden of Illinois, president of the National Holstein-Friesian association, and Governor J. J. Blaine of Wisconsin, did not appear, and the great crowd was keenly disappointed as a result. Governor Blaine sent a telegram stating that the chance in date of the field day from Tuesday to Wednesday made it impossible to be present. Mr. Lowden's place was taken by D. D. Aitkin, former president of the national Holstein breeders association. His address was preceded by an address of welcome by A. W. Ritchie, president of the Waupaca co. Holstein Breeders association, who paid high tribute to Mr. Erickson's herd as forming the nucleus not only in Waupaca co., and Wisconsin, but the United States.

"I congratulate the people of Wisconsin on an exhibition such as I see today," Mr. Aitkin said. "Wisconsin has accomplished much in dairy farming. It is shown here today that your people appreciate the necessity for doing what you are doing. I have told the people in my own state, Michigan, that if all her Holstein-Friesian cows were in three counties they would be worth 50 per cent more. You here are reaping the benefit of community and inter-county breeding. You are having tenfold results. You are creating a market for Holstein Friesian cattle in your own midst."

Mr. Aitkin called attention to dairy farming as a desirable vocation. Less than 4 per cent of the American people leave over $4,000 when they die, he said. In a Michigan city 30,000 people are employed in the automobile industry, but there are only five proprietors. An intelligent and industrious Holstein dairy farmer, he said, is his own boss and is not classed in the 96 per cent who fail. All should be done to retain the interest of boys and girls in the farm to keep them from leaving it, he urged. The future of dairy farming rests upon them, he declared.

Professor K. L. Hatch of the University of Wisconsin spoke on the requisites for building a good livestock industry. He enumerated health, quality, quantity, advertising and emulating the example of leaders in dairy farming such as Erickson and others in Waupaca and neighboring counties.

HOLD DEMONSTRATION
A dairy cow demonstration was conducted by Professor George C. Humphrey of the University of Wisconsin. In judging Mr. Erickson's herd, he singled out Wisconsin Fobes 6 as the prize cow in the lot, the best of the Wisconsin Fobes family and the largest dairy cow in the world. The essentials of breeding, feeding, management and development of dairy temperament had been compiled with by Mr. Erickson, he said, and this cow was the prize achievement of his 25 years endeavor in dairy breeding. With its size, beauty of form, strong back, long thin neck, straight legs, outstanding hip points, large eyes, large open nostrils, fineness of skin, the cow was nearly perfect, he said.

The rest of the family and other families in the Erickson herd were then brought in for inspection, while the motion picture camera was kept busy. Here was Wisconsin Fobes, mother of the Fobes family, with her year's production of 24,535 pounds of milk and 1153.05 pounds of butter. Here were her daughters, Wisconsin Fobes 4, which at 5 years is giving 25,525.6 pounds of milk and 1,031.33 pounds of butter, and Wisconsin Fobes 5 with a 7 day production of 5,180 pounds of milk and 29.60 pounds of butter. There was Wisconsin Pride 2, holder of the world's record with 29,502.9 pounds milk and 1,227.23 butter; also Wisconsin Pride 3, 3 years production 22,011.7 pounds milk and 1,000.58 butter. The world's record yearling is Daisy Aggie Ormsby with a production of 22,151.2 pounds of milk and 1088.28 butter. Others deserving special mention are Princess Della 2, a 3 year old—21,213 milk, 836.52 butter, and Princess Della 3, a 2 year old—22,600.3 milk and 958.61 butter.

A silver loving cup was presented by the Holstein-Friesian breeders association to Mr. Erickson in appreciation of his services. Miss Evelyn Olson was adjudged the dairy queen of the show and Miss Esther Erickson maid of honor by L. L. Oldham, secretary of the state association of Holstein breeders.

Lack Of Cooperation With Europe Is Blamed For Slump In Business

Graef and Corbett Hear Interesting Addresses on World Economic Conditions at National Chamber of Commerce Convention.

Lack of cooperation between the United States and European countries is standing in the way of a return to business prosperity. The sooner this country learns that she cannot isolate herself and must consider others the earlier commerce will revive and normal conditions be restored. This was the keynote of the tenth annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, according to Hugh G. Corbett, managing secretary of Appleton Chamber of Commerce, who attended the sessions last week in company with Lothar G. Graef, president.

10,000 IN ATTENDANCE
Approximately 10,000 business men and economic leaders of the nation were present and exchanged views in public meetings and group conferences on the situation within this country, and in other parts of the world. Every address or conclusion was on the one big need—that of more intimate relations between commercial nations.

"More than one speaker told us the United States never could get back to prosperity without cooperating with other nations," Mr. Corbett said. "President Harding and congress was criticized for standing pat too much. They went into office on an anti-league-of-nations platform, but the people are beginning to believe they carried this opposition so far that business is suffering."

Concessions ought to be made Germany with respect to reparations payments, it was said, instead of forcing her to develop a foreign market in order to meet her obligations. She should not be driven to get a trade grasp, because it will give her a power that other countries could well afford to acquire themselves, speakers emphasized.

FARMERS HANDICAPPED
This same failure to cooperate was named as a handicap to restoration of farming prosperity. Mr. Corbett said, as expressed by J. R. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, in his address. United States was advised to do all it could to revive industry in Europe, because a market then would be created for the raw materials raised by the farmer.

President Harding addressed one meeting, voicing the belief that the country was on the threshold of a new business era, with promise of much more favorable conditions. Mr. Corbett heard two addresses by Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, who deplored money loaning policies of the government and saying United States had no business doing this. This function should be left to banks, the speaker said.

One of the ablest outlines of the European situation was given by Arthur Balfour, a member of the British delegation to the recent arms conference. He asserted that within a year commerce would be flowing back to normal channels and the problem of unemployment would disappear. He said the countries must stand together, because world peace depends on their cooperation.

FORMER BANGER SPEAKS
Mr. Corbett attended the group meeting dealing with domestic distribution and Mr. Graef those dealing with civic development. One of the group conference speakers was Dr. Paul H. Nyström, who is well known to Appleton people because of his work here while connected with the extension division of the University of Wisconsin. He now is director of the Retail Research association, New York. He spoke on the "Growth and Significance of Chain Stores."

Mr. Corbett had the privilege of a call at the office of Charles Evans Hughes, secretary of state. He ventured an invitation to Mr. Hughes to speak in Appleton while on a tour of the west, but the secretary declined because of the press of official duties. The senate chamber and house also were visited by the Appleton secretary also.

Contract for Pavement on Route 17 is Awarded by State Highway Board

Greinke Bros. were awarded the contract for paving the Dale-Madina rd. at the office of O. C. Rollman, division engineer of district No. 3, at Green Bay Tuesday. The contract calls for four and one-half miles of cement paving.

Eleven bids were submitted by contractors from various parts of the state. The closing up of this gap will give an almost continuous pavement to Waupaca co. Among those present at the opening of the bids were A. G. Brusewitz, county highway commissioner, George Fiedler and P. H. Ryan, the latter two members of the county, state road and bridge committee.

THE REDUCTION IN FREIGHT RATES

Rate making is so highly technical and is so little understood by the layman and it embraces the public at large, that it is possible to express only in a very general way opinion on the action of the Interstate Commerce commission ordering a general reduction in freight tariffs. In approaching this question the commission has been influenced by two points of view, one of which was that there should be horizontal reduction of rates, and the other that the so-called basic commodities should be given preferential reductions. The commission has adopted the former view, and the reductions will average about 10 per cent. They are in effect a sealing down of the general increases which were given to all railroads in 1920. The commission adopts the view that railroads today are entitled to earn five and three-quarters per cent on the value of their property, and retains the 1920 estimate which fix the aggregate value at $18,900,000,000. This amounts to a reduction of one-quarter per cent in the basis of returns, instead of the six per cent which has heretofore prevailed, and means simply that the rates are theoretically fixed to produce that amount of net income. There is no guarantee, and as a matter of fact the railroads have not realized the six per cent allowed in 1920.

The commission says: "Transportation charges have mounted to the point where they are impeding the free flow of commerce, and are thus tending toward the defeat of the purpose for which they were established, that of producing revenue which would enable the carriers to provide the people of the United States with adequate transportation." While it is stated that in Washington the reduction is larger than was expected, it cannot be said that it is larger than the public generally and shippers particularly hoped to see ordered. A horizontal reduction averaging ten per cent will without question leave rates excessively high on certain commodities, in some of which transportation charges bear an altogether disproportionate relation to the cost of producing the article of commerce and to its actual value. However, it can be said that the commission's order will meet with general public approval, because it recognizes the correctness as well as the justness of the widespread demand for relief from excessively high transportation charges, as well as the fact that the high rates have been detrimental to business and have retarded commercial recovery. We may expect to see the order of the commission followed by agitation and application for further relief in the case of certain commodities, and sooner or later this relief must be granted.

Whether the railroads realize it or not, the high scale of freight rates has impaired their own prosperity along with that of the country at large. This is true because of the simple economic law that the rates have become so high that volume has been unduly reduced, and it is axiomatic in any business, including that of transportation, that the rate which will just produce capacity volume is the most economical and should normally yield the largest net return. It is the principle on which every extensive business is conducted. The reductions now ordered will unquestionably increase volume, and we may expect to see before the close of the year a substantial increase in the gross earnings of the railroads. To what extent this is reflected in net earnings will depend principally upon operating efficiency of the railroads.

THE USE OF CREDIT

"Many people have rather hazy ideas about the functions of credit." So says Mr. George E. Roberts, vice president of the National City Bank of New York city. You can use credit as a purchasing power, he explains, "but, if you increase the use of purchasing power faster than you increase the supply of goods in trade, you accomplish nothing except to drive up prices."

What happens when prices increase? The value of money diminishes, and automatically the value of credit, which is a substitute for money or for the equivalent of money, decreases more than proportionately. Money in hand is owned capital. Credit is borrowed capital, which is obtained at a price represented by interest. Credit is less valuable, in purchasing or productive power, than money, to the extent that it is discounted not only by the interest charged for it, but also by the obligation of repaying it by a specified date. Credit is a liability which is employed in the same manner as capital, and is an impairment of capital.

Mr. Roberts might have added that most persons have neglected to study the causes of the rise of prices and the effect of prices and credit on the cost of doing business, and that very few persons have a true understanding of what money is. Money is but a medium of exchange, and it is not money that is exchanged, but goods. The exchange of goods forces prices and costs to rise, and tends to augment the demand for money, or rather, for substitutes for money, such as credit.

Most business men fail to recognize that, as prices of goods and cost of production or doing business increase, the price of credit also rises. When prosperity seems, therefore, to be at the maximum and the profits from commerce appear to be large, business is likely to be conducted at a loss, for the price of credit attains the peak and the value of money and credit is lowest. This is the anomalous condition that prevails when credit has expanded to the extreme limit and stability is impaired.

"A rising price movement due to an inflation of credit," says Mr. Roberts, "always creates a problem: if you stop it, you create a crisis, and if you let it go it will run into a worse one." Mr. Roberts' assertion that "many people have rather hazy ideas about the functions of credit" must be taken as a suggestion to study one of the most vital fundamentals of modern business. Misuse of credit always precipitates a commercial crisis. The recent economic reaction afforded us a rare opportunity to learn by experience how to curb credit. Adjustment of the discount and re-discount rates so as to restrain the use of credit by fixing a temporarily prohibitive price on it is the scientific precaution of conservative commerce and safe finance.

ELECTRIFICATION OF THE FARM

The rural lines committee says in a report to the National Electric light association that the farm soon will be electrified in much the same manner that the factory has been electrified in the past fifteen to twenty years. The committee is making a study of farmers' needs and of equipment now available, in the hope of developing additional machines and experiment. Economic transmission of power to and through rural districts has been and is the most perplexing question regarding the supply of electric current. There is a loss of power in transmission. There is a capital investment in establishing power lines, and there is a steady cost in maintaining them. Of course, there must be business sufficient to justify extensions into strictly rural districts, and the price of current must be low enough to interest farmers.

Necessity overcomes impediments. Electrification of the farm is a necessity. If transmission of power is too expensive, it is probable that power will be generated in localities. The latter plan is feasible. The rural lines committee is safe in predicting that the farm in due time will be electrified. Running the farm is a business, and the up-to-date farm will be run, as far as possible, as a factory is operated. Farmers naturally want the best living conveniences. "Electrical development on the farm," says the report, "is expected to be a potent factor in raising the standard of rural life. Development of electrical machinery is expected to be of special value in view of the shortage of farm labor, and the use of labor-saving devices in rural homes should do much to simplify domestic work."

Perhaps Doyle is right, and death is pleasant. Those that rise up appear uniformly happy. —BALTIMORE SUN.

TRICHINOSIS

Trichina or Trichinella spiralis is a small round worm that passes its whole life cycle in man, the rat and the hog, although several other animals are occasionally infested, such as mice, dogs, rabbits, cats, foxes and guinea pigs. Unlike the common or beef tapeworm, this parasite passes both its larval and adult stages in one host, be the host man, rat, hog or other animal. The host eats the flesh of the infested animal in which the larvae are present, in little capsules embedded in the muscle. The capsule is digested in the host's stomach and the larva set free. It enters the intestine and in a few days grows large enough to be visible to a fine thread which grows into the mature worm. The female produces about 500 young, and these embryos pierce the bowel wall and get into the blood stream, which carries them to the muscles and other parts of the body. About a week is taken for all this to happen.

When man is infested with trichina worms, by eating raw ham, insufficiently cooked pork, tongue, headcheese, worst, and possibly other meats from butcher shops or slaughter houses where rats are permitted to thrive (the rat is the common host of trichinella) there is first a stage of a week or 10 days of mere stomach or intestinal disturbance or perhaps not even that, and then the stage of general infection (when the embryos are spreading thru the muscles and the organs). This second stage is characterized by agonizing pains in the muscles, swelling and tenderness of the muscles, pain on movement, and puffiness or edema of the skin over the sore muscles. The muscles of mastication are commonly involved, as well as those of swallowing. One gets a sense of stiffness of the jaw, the eyes protrude, sweating, feverishness, and hives often accompany the general symptoms. Blood examination shows a remarkable increase in the type of white corpuscles or scavenger cells that take a peculiar stain—eosinophiles—and this is rather characteristic of parasitic infestations. Positive diagnosis is made by the removal and microscopic examination of a bit of muscle from the biceps or elsewhere and the finding therein of the trichinae.

By the way, there are well known human beings who have the temerity to deny that any such thing as parasitic infestation ever occurred. That is not a comfortable kind of faith for a fellow equipped with a block of cooties.

In most cases of trichinosis recovery follows. A few prove fatal. Children are more likely to recover than adults, probably because they eat less of the infected meat. If there is active diarrhea in the first stage, that is favorable to recovery. It also suggests the wisdom of taking very thorough doses of physic when stomach or intestinal disturbance follows indulgence in some questionable hog meat, especially if it has not been thoroughly cooked.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Can't Sleep in Peace
What would you suggest causes me to toss about and think of my business cares and troubles after I get into bed nights? I believe I am a healthy specimen, aged 47, and my affairs are all right. I smoke about four cigars daily, sometimes one or two late in the evening. Would that prevent sleep?—(W. F. M.)
Answer—Take out more life insurance. It is a good preventive of bad nights. (Agents please remember I don't smoke cigars. Maybe a little pipe and cigar, you say, of course.) This sitting around the office or strolling about the store and riding to and from business is enough to unbalance any nervous system unless you get the habit of working some every day. Smoking late at night keeps some smokers awake, even the beloved old pipe. It is just possible that you do not give enough consideration to sleeping equipment—that is, a comfortable single bed, good springs and mattress, light coverings (light but warm enough), as cold air as the season affords.

Incipient Trucking
I am 22 years of age and anxious to join the U. S. A. and enter the army class, but my future husband insists I get sufficient exercise every day in the office and that gym work and so forth is very unhygienic. Will you please give me your opinion.—(H. L. A.)
Answer—You'll have plenty of time to truckle to his lordship after you're tied up young lady. Meanwhile I should advise you to go in and get what physical education you can—it may help you to handle your husband later on.

Bacillus Profundus
Can you tell me why the perspiration from one armpit stains clothing red, while the other does not?—(J. W. T.)
Answer—Quicker Watson, the eleventh volume of the Encyclopedia Bacteriologica! Ah, yes, very simple. The case presents very interesting features. Growth of a harmless micro-organism, a bacillus growing in the name of Bacillus profundus, owing to its gigantic size as compared with other bacilli. Remedial application of any antiseptic or germicide which will not irritate the skin, such as a mopping or bathing once a day for a week or more with a solution of mercuric iodine, one to one thousand, which would be approximately seven grains in a pint of water, is highly recommended with a solution of as much boric acid as a pint of water will take up, will accomplish the same result.

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

PINCHOT'S VICTORY

The result of the recent primary elections in Pennsylvania has been of deep interest to the country at large. The newspaper comment generally is concerned with the political views of the writers but there is a general agreement that the result shows that the so-called progressive spirit once again is very much alive in the United States. Republican papers insist for the most part that there was no rebuke to the national administration in the downfall of the "old guard" machine, but independent and Democratic editors argue otherwise.

When all is said, however, the Boston POST, (Ind. Dem.), declares that "the Pinchot victory is squarely in line with the Beveridge victory in Indiana only a few weeks ago, in that it is significant of popular discontent with the career of the present Congress and that a new and more progressive spirit is surely taking possession of the Republican party in many states. It will not need many more over-turns of this sort to convince the country and Congress that being 'organization' and 'in' is no safeguard against defeat for nomination." The fact that the strongest organization candidates lost their own districts was most significant, the Philadelphia PUBLIC LEDGER, (Ind.), believes, indicating that "the Pinchot nomination sounds a new and brighter era in Pennsylvania and in national Republicanism. It is due largely to the women that the control of the party organization has been wrested from the hands that have fouled it." While there was a great deal of the personal element and triumph in the Pinchot victory the Washington STAR, (Ind.), suggests that the primary result "was not an anti-Republican performance," and that while "a Pinchot machine may not rise on the ruins of the Penrose machine, the Pinchot leadership will have to be asserted in some vigorous and practical way."

Because the "stay at home vote in Philadelphia was large," the Philadelphia INQUIRER, (Rep.), declares that "while the bosses have lost out in their main fight they were yet able to prove that they still controlled a majority of the Republicans of the city." This fact, it asserts, "is discouraging to all earnest friends of good government." The Pinchot victory also shows that "the rank and file of the Republican party is not pleased with the conduct of affairs the New York EVENING POST, (Ind.), is convinced, suggesting that "from the triumph of Beveridge and Pinchot the leaders may learn the wisdom of looking forward rather than backward." In addition the Pennsylvania result, the Knoxville SENTINEL, (Ind. Dem.), points out, "will shake the G. O. P. structure in the nation from turret to foundation stone, and set up such a rattling of the dry bones of the party as never before was known in the history of the United States."

The fact that there was no opposition to the Harding Administration indicated in any way by Pinchot and his followers in the re-primary campaign convinced the Springfield REPUBLICAN, (Ind.), that "what focussed this discontent in Pennsylvania was the rare opportunity to smash the old machine and begin a new era in Pennsylvania politics. Mr. Pinchot as Governor of Pennsylvania, assuming that such will be his destiny, will sharply challenge the attention of the country and easily be one of the most salient public figures of the day." The result also showed that "the day of 'hard-boiled' candidates is past," the Pittsburgh LEADER, (Prog. Rep.), points out, adding that "the result is purification and revivification of the Republican Party. The rebuke administered means that there will be little or no contest at the general election." The nomination of Pinchot "is a matter of great gratification to the friends of good government everywhere," the Savannah PRESS, (Dem.), believes. "This is without regard to political alignments. Good government represents the best element of his party and of his people. This is the next thing to a Democratic victory. The whole nation has occasion to rejoice in his triumph."

While "many lessons can be drawn" from the result, the Cincinnati TIMES STAR, (Rep.), characterizes as "far fetched and absurd" suggestions that it in anyway is a rebuke to the administration and a crushing blow to regular Republicanism, but the Syracuse HERALD, (Ind.), is convinced that the voters of Pennsylvania supported Pinchot as "another warning to the men in control at Washington that they must apply the brakes quickly and resolutely if they would avert a party disaster next fall." There also is significance, the Adrian, Mich., DAILY TELEGRAM, (Ind.), suggests, in the fact that "Senator Pepper has been outspoken in opposition to the Pinchot nomination. He has been a soldier's bonus, and his power, taken in advantage of the soldier vote. It is plain that the bonus issue as a political issue has been over estimated."

Tattooing is mostly done by amateurs. A talented young artist tries to earn a little pocket-money by tattooing his companions. But he does it with little bundles of five to six pins, not with the hollow needle of the professional tattoo artist. In the navy especially at one time this was very much the fashion. And many of these young men in the navy who had themselves tattooed repented of it after their term of service and tried to get rid of the traces. Sulphur and hyptic chloride are used for the purpose but both of them burn the skin, leave scars and only half erase the drawing. The older the tattoo, the deeper the color sinks into the skin. Milk and salt have also been used to obliterate the traces, but it is difficult to find anything that entirely does away with all signs of it. Out of curiosity I went the other day to one of these institutions where they try to do away with the sins of tattooing. The head is something between a chemist and a doctor and the treatment lasts three quarters of an hour. Among the patients are many factory directors, officials, and a great number of officers, especially those formerly belonging to the navy. A woman of 45 was being treated who was never able to wear short sleeves because of being tattooed on her arm. One 70 year old man wants to get rid of his tattoo but he is marked from his neck right down to his toes. It would mean skinning him entirely if an attempt were made to 'cure' him, so the doctor has sent him home as a hopeless case.

"Among civilized people tattooing is seldom done on the face. But it is as often by primitive people, not only an ornament but a sign of a profession and a kind of fetish. Just as the Arabs have little blue hands tattooed into the skin to protect them against the evil eye, so many people row-days have lucky signs painted on them. And these lucky signs are often tattooed by fortune-tellers. In the North of Berlin, cards are to be seen in some of the windows displaying the fact that 'beautiful' tattooing either from copies or original, is done here." And these artists show their customers large sheets of tracing paper, covered with patterns of the signs of different trades or fantastical snakes, stars and dragons, anchors and hearts, women's heads, etc. The 'artists' demand now-a-days about 50 marks for a small tattoo. It is mostly done with Indian ink (which looks blue through the skin) or cinabar. Some of the 'beautiful' tattooing is even yellow but this is dangerous and the production of the colors is a secret.

Seek New Order

BY THE REV. HARRY F. WARD
Professor, Union Theological Seminary, New York; Secretary Methodist Federation for Social Service
New York—One of the significant marks of church life today is the growing conviction that the business of the church is nothing less than to secure the transformation of a whole social and economic order so that it shall embody fundamental Christian principles and ideals. One interesting indication of this feeling is the conference on Christianity and the Economic Order at the Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston, Ill., May 23-25, under the auspices of the Methodist Federation for Social Service.

This conference, attended by laymen and ministers from all parts of the United States, was called primarily for discussion and thought in the endeavor to discover what a Christian social order should be and what effective steps should be taken to bring it about. CHURCHES ARE ACTIVE Social conception of Christianity for many years has been growing in the churches. Churches have been active in definite forms of social service. Organized protest has been made when certain conditions in industry have been shown up to be intolerable. Many valuable achievements in righting social wrongs have been done. But it has become increasingly evident that behind particular evils there stands all the time the present economic order which baffles the most passionate and industrious efforts to remedy unjust conditions. Consequently, there is growing the feeling that the whole economic order must undergo vital changes—that this order must be Christianized. A new order of social living is necessary for both the practical and spiritual interests of humanity. The events of the last few years have intensified that conviction and have added to it the judgment that the beginnings of a new order already are with us.

NEW ORDER SOUGHT

An increasing section of the leadership of the churches is accepting the responsibility which devolves upon organized religion in a day when multitudes of men and women are longing for a new order of life. The churches are further charged with the responsibility of urging and teaching the people, as they seek the true ends of life, to apply the knowledge and the social power gained in the past. On these terms religion affirms the possibility of a new social order.

A man would like to know whether I can be cured. T. S. W.

A. Man secretes about a quart of this fluid daily. An ox secretes 50 times as much.

UNCLE JOE CANNON HAPPY AT END OF 46-YEAR CAREER

Retiring Congressional Veteran
Has Many Pleasant Reminiscences

Special to The Post-Crescent
Washington—When Uncle Joe Cannon steps out of the House of Representatives on March 4, 1923, he will carry a fund of political reminiscences such as "I cannot yield" I ever obtained in the House," Uncle Joe explains.

On that date Uncle Joe will have concluded 46 years' service as a member of the House. In the course of these years he became the center of perhaps the most bitter partisan struggle Congress ever knew.

Yet the best recollection Uncle Joe will take out with him on retirement, he says, is the knowledge that party differences or party policies have little power to wreck real friendships.

"The first anxiety I ever obtained in the House," Uncle Joe explains, "was by the aid of 'Sunset' Cox. A great man was Cox.

"One day he was running amuck attacking the Republican side as only he could. Finally he made a remark about a constituent of mine who had just been nominated for commissioner of internal revenue.

"That aroused me. I jumped up and asked if the speaker would yield. 'I cannot yield,' Cox answered. 'The gentleman shakes his finger at me and scares me.'

"Then a smile came over his face and he said: 'I will yield as long as the gentleman keeps his left hand in his pocket.'

"I accepted and began vigorously to defend my friend. But before I had talked 60 seconds, I forgot all about that left hand and out it came. 'Time's up,' said Cox. And it was.

"In the campaign of '14 that finger was cartooned all over the country." One of the necessary qualifications for a member of Congress, Uncle Joe insists, is an open mind. For instance:

Prof. Langley appeared before the committee of appropriations while I was chairman," he recalls, "and said: 'I want five or ten thousand dollars—whatever it was—to experiment.'

"What is it, professor?" I asked. "Oh," he said, "I want to perfect a flying machine."

"Said I—My God!"

"He said: 'Now, Mr. Cannon; do not birds fly?' And are they not heavier than air?"

"I reported the appropriation, and we had a big contest to pass it. But today we have the flying machine."

"Twenty-five of them successful—have given" Uncle Joe political sagacity. To be successful, he insists, the candidate must know his people and

OUR HASKIN IS NOT IN THE OIL BUSINESS

Frederic J. Haskin, Director of the Washington Information Bureau of this newspaper, the author of the Haskin Letter and the Haskin Books, is not engaged in any other business.

Someone with an almost identical name, calling himself "editor" and "publisher," and using literature bearing the words "Haskin Information Bureau," is seeking money from the public to invest in oil stocks of his own choosing.

Note carefully that the name of the man in our employ is Frederic J. Haskin, and remember that he has nothing to do with the oil business or any other investments. The Appleton Post-Crescent pays for his services and the work he does for our readers is entirely free.

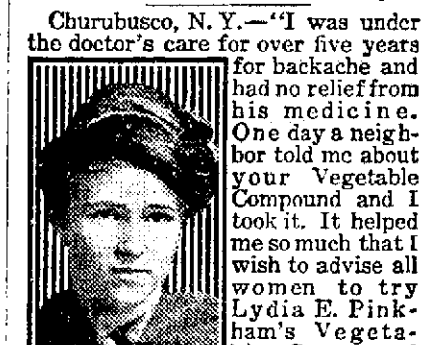

what they are thinking and wanting. He must keep his 'ear to the ground.'

As for the future—what? Does Uncle Joe think that the days of the great are gone? He talks with feeling and at length of the achievements of Blaine and Randall, of Alexander H. Stephens, George F. Hoar, Tom Platt, Sunset Cox, Pig-Iron Kelley, Jerry Rusk, Tom Reed, John G. Carlisle and a host of others with whom he has served. There have been more than 3,000 men in and out of Congress during Uncle Joe's service. He has tried his thrusts with them all. But he says—

"There are now more great men and great women in the United States than there ever have been in the past. They are everywhere—following their vocations. But when necessary, whether it be to Congress, in civil life, on the bench or elsewhere, there will be found more people capable of self-government and ready to defend the Flag than there ever have been since the discovery of America."

SUCCEEDS WHERE DOCTORS FAIL

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Often Does That.
Read Mrs. Miner's Testimony

Churubusco, N. Y.—"I was under the doctor's care for over five years for backache and had no relief from his medicine. One day a neighbor told me about your Vegetable Compound and I took it. It helped me so much that I wish to advise all women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles and backache. It is a great help in carrying a child, as I have noticed a difference when I didn't take it. I thank you for this medicine and if I ever come to this point again I do not want to be without the Vegetable Compound. I give you permission to publish this letter so that all women can take my advice."—Mrs. FRANK MINER, Box 102, Churubusco, N. Y.

It's the same story over again. Women suffer from ailments for years. They try doctors and different medicines, but feel no better. Finally they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you can see its value in the case of Mrs. Miner. All ailing women ought to try this medicine. It can be taken in safety by young or old, as it contains no harmful drugs.

Clergyman Is Thankful To Rail Flagman

An incident occurred at College-ave. railroad crossing Wednesday quite out of the ordinary. Frank Murphy, flagman, blew his whistle as a warning that a train was approaching and a moment later he saw a Ford coupe coming towards him under full headway. He was satisfied the driver had not heard the whistle and he gave another sharp shrill blast. The driver stopped promptly and after the train had passed he drove over to the flagman's headquarters and thanked him for the service rendered. The driver was a clergyman who said he would undoubtedly have been struck by the train but for the flagman's precaution.

RUNAWAY TEAM CAUSES DAMAGE TO AUTO TRUCK

Wichmann Furniture company's automobile truck was damaged Wednesday afternoon while standing in the alley at the rear of the store on College-ave. when a wagon drawn by a runaway team, crashed into it. The team is owned by Thoreson Lumber company and was driven by Roy Yempz.

Becoming frightened at the steam shovel which is excavating for the new Wichmann building, the horses dashed west in the alley toward State-st. The animals attempted to turn out for an automobile owned by Peter Moder, and forced the wagon into the truck. One of the horses fell. Mr. Yempz was not on the wagon when the runaway started.

TEACH TRUTH AS THEY SEE IT, BLAINE SAYS IN TALK

Valparaiso, Ind.—Denial of academic freedom to professors by limiting their right to "teach the truth as they see it," has had a greater blighting effect upon American colleges and universities than low salaries, Gov. J. J. Blaine of Wisconsin told members of the graduating class of Valparaiso university today, in an address.

The educational institutions without professors of a type who can instill in their students an idealism of service, miss their greatest opportunity. Governor Blaine said, asserting that the problem of obtaining such teachers and of keeping them "is a matter of academic freedom—the right of professors to teach and publish the truth as they see it."

BALL TEAM DOZES CONFIDENCE AFTER SUNDAY'S VICTORY

Kaukauna Plays Oshkosh and Menasha on Sunday and Tuesday—New Spirit

Kaukauna—Oozing confidence, but braced to fight with all its strength, Kaukauna baseball team is ready for the trip to Oshkosh Sunday and a fracas with the Sawdust city Indians. The victory of last Sunday over Appleton, which was Kaukauna's first last season, put a lot of pep into Brautigan's coils.

On Tuesday, Memorial day, the team meets the undefeated Menasha team on its own diamond and if it succeeds in downing the squad Kaukauna will be pretty well toward the front in the flag race. The local aggregation will line up the same as last Sunday. Flanagan who held down the center garden in great style last Sunday and lead in the batting, proved a "find" for the Kaukauna gang and is sure of a berth.

The team as a whole has not yet gotten out of the habit of "taking it easy" when it gets a few runs ahead but Manager Brautigan is continual after the men and the watchword is "make everything count for a run." Discipline is making itself felt this season and every player on the team is playing the game according to orders.

Kaukauna no doubt will be well represented both at Oshkosh Sunday and at Menasha Tuesday.

Tiny Knockers Just The Thing For Guest Room

If you would treat your guests with utmost courtesy, provide your guest room door with a small brass knocker. These small knockers which have been introduced to the careful hostess comparatively recently are being shown in Appleton more than the large sized knockers. Although brass is the most favored metal for these little guest room ornaments they are being furnished in period designs and in painted finish to match the furniture or woodwork.

The large brass knockers on front doors although they are being used a great deal in many places are not so popular in Appleton as they have been. The dealers fail to account for apparent loss of interest here in the use of these old fashioned knockers. Those who have them like them better than door bells and their initial cost is not greater.

These larger knockers come in period designs and are those which were on the houses of such men as George Washington, Alexander Hamilton and others. The most used designs, however, are in brass. Knockers are considered very good ornament for those plain one panel doors.

OFFER TREASURY BONDS TO PAY OFF U. S. WAR STAMPS

More Than $600,000,000 in War Saving Stamps to be Redeemed Next January

Approximately 500,000 United States War Saving stamps still are outstanding in Outagamie co. according to Postmaster Gustave Keller. This is the amount that has not been redeemed of the 700,000 stamps that were sold in the county in June 1915 largely through the help of the women in the county council of defense. The stamps will be redeemable next January.

War Savings stamps aggregating $600,000,000 in value will be retired by the United States treasury department Jan. 1. This means that in average of $8 for every man, woman and child in the country will have to be raised before that date when the stamps are to be redeemed. In order that the government may be able to meet its obligation it is offering for sale the new Treasury Department savings certificates in denominations of $20, $50 and $100 each and yielding 5 per cent interest.

"No more favorable investment for the average man is conceivable," said Mr. Keller. "It is the best security in the world being in substance a United States government bond. The stamps are registered. The holder is protected against theft fire or any other kind of loss. They are redeemable at any time, although at a small rate of interest. But if left to mature, in five years they yield 5 per cent. Thus a $20 stamp grows to $25, an $50 stamp to $50 and an $100 stamp to $100 in but a few years."

"The government is calling upon all patriotic citizens to take advantage of this excellent investment. Each stamp holder virtually becomes a stockholder in the government. Here is a chance for every one to test his citizenship and his loyalty."

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Men's Sulphur to an itching burning or broken out skin the itching stops and healing begins says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream gives such a quick relief even to hives, eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ destroying properties it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up leaving a clear smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Men's Sulphur at any drug store.

Help That Aching Back

Is your back giving out? Are you tired, miserable, all run down, tortured with nagging backache, lumbago and sudden, stabbing pains? If so, look to your kidneys. Overwork, hurry and worry tend to weaken the kidneys. Backache and an all worn out feeling is often the first warning. Get back your health while you can. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy Appleton folks recommend. Ask your neighbor.

Here's an Appleton Case:
Albert McAllister, retired farmer, 1025 Oneida st. says: "I was bothered with backache, and when I stooped over I couldn't straighten up. Sharp pains bothered me constantly and made it hard for me to do anything. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and in three days' time the backache had disappeared and I could do my work as well as ever." adv.

THE STAGE

The Three Musketeers
Dumas' "The Three Musketeers" forms an admirable basis for the photoplay of the same name in which Douglas Fairbanks is appearing at Fischer's Appleton for the remainder of the week. Its adventure, romance and swashbuckling offer the ever helpful Doug every opportunity, not for a moment forgetting the characteristic comedy for which he is noted. It is a fine role finely enacted.

The spirit of the story has been faithfully adhered to and the supporting cast is well chosen. Especially good is the performance of Richelieu by Nigel DeBrillier. The scenery, costuming and settings are massive and fully in keeping with the period of French history in which the story is laid. Without question it is one of the big pictures in all that the term implies.

Owing to the fact that the performance takes up two hours there are three performances daily at 2:30, 6:45 and 8:45.

STIFF SENTENCE FOR HAVING PART IN COCK BATTLE

Burlington Man Assessed $100 and Sent to Workhouse—Two Men Discharged

One man was sentenced and two were discharged in municipal court Wednesday afternoon on charges of conducting and participating in a cock fight April 1 at Little Chute.

C. J. Weiler of Burlington, Wis., was the only one to be found guilty of the charges brought by the Rev. Frank B. Dunkley, vice president of the Wisconsin Humane society, and A. E. Frederick, state humane agent. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and in addition serve 10 days in the county workhouse.

The case against J. P. Watery of Little Chute, who was declared to be the owner of the property on which the cock fight is said to have occurred, was dismissed for lack of evidence. The Rev. Mr. Dunkley could not submit sufficient evidence that Mr. Watery had any control over the property. Louis Mannebach of Little Chute, also was discharged on motion of the state.

100 SAILORS WILL MARCH AS UNIT IN MEMORIAL PARADE

"Gobs" Are to Be Mustered in Full Strength to Honor Deceased Sailors of War

Every former navy man in Appleton and the surrounding locality is being urged by his fellow "gobs" to turn out Memorial day in uniform to participate in the parade with the naval unit. Not less than 100 sailors are expected to be in line.

Arrangements are being made by leaders among the former sailors to place proper officers in command of the unit, and to conform to military rules during the march.

The uniform of the day is to be blue suits, white hats and no leggings. All men are to assemble at Elk hall, the American legion gathering point, before 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The sailors then will be formed in a column to march behind the former soldiers.

The sailors will march to the river bank with J. T. Reeve circle when the parade units separate at Riverside cemetery for the respective services. One of the uniformed men will place the large wreath on the water in respect to the sailors who perished during the World war, previous to the sounding of taps.

Automobile Afire
A still alarm was turned in at fire station No. 1 Thursday morning when an automobile owned by Henry Scheil caught fire. The machine was standing at the corner of Appleton and Commercial streets, and was ignited by a short circuit in the battery. No damage was done except to the wiring.

WHEN IS A COLLEGE A SMALL COLLEGE?

We are accustomed to hear the nine voluntarily supported colleges of Wisconsin spoken of as small colleges. This is undoubtedly in contrast with the great state institutions.

Several of these colleges are larger than the famous old colleges of the east. Two of the group run over 1,000; one around 600; several about 400.

These colleges may be small, but they are great. Not numbers but quality of product make them so.

IMPROVEMENT IN STUDY GRADES AT LOCAL COLLEGE

Senior Class Has Highest Average Grade — Freshmen Grade is Lowest

The scholastic average of the students at Lawrence college is higher for this year than last year according to statistics prepared by Olin Mead, registrar. The average for 1921-22 is 81.3 as compared with 81.73 of last year. The records show that the grades of men have been raised this year while those of the girls have been lowered. The grades of the sorority women and fraternity men are higher than those who do not belong to Greek letter organizations. Last year the men made a grade of 79.46 while this year they are graded 80.7 and the girls averaged 84.06 last year and only 83.3 this year. The average grade of the fraternity men is 80.9 as compared with 80.6 of the nonfraternity men while the sorority grade is 84 and the nonsorority grade 82.7. As the classes progress in college, their averages are higher. The freshmen grade is 80.1, the sophomore 81.9, the junior, 85.2 and the senior 87.4. Mr. Mead accounts for this in the fact that poorer students drop out from year to year while only those who are in earnest in their studies remain to graduate.

KAPPA DELTA WINS
The sorority scholarship cup which is given to the sorority with the highest scholastic standing will go to Kappa Delta this year which has an average of 86.2. Other sorority grades are: Delta Gamma, 85.8; Epsilon Alpha Phi, 84; Kappa Alpha Theta, 83.4; Phi Mu, 83.4; Alpha Delta, 83; Zeta Tau Alpha, 82.4; and Alpha Gamma Phi, 80.

To Phi Kappa Tau goes the highest grade among the fraternities. It has an average of 85.7 which is 3.9 points higher than Sigma Phi Epsilon which receives second with a grade of 81.8. Beta Sigma Phi made a grade of 81.5; Delta Sigma Tau, 80.7; Phi Kappa Alpha, 79.8; Theta Phi 79.1 and Delta Iota, 78.5. The general average of the college is on the upward curve after a slump since 1917-1918. The grade in 1917-18 was 83.79, in 1918-19, 82.82; 1919-20, 81.73. The year 1918-1919 was the time when the Students Army Training corps was at the college and its grades are not considered in valuation of college grades.

POLICEMEN TAKE RESCUE TRAINING

Every Swimmer is Urged by Y. M. C. A. to Learn Methods of Life-Saving

Several members of Appleton police force soon will become expert life savers following instructions they are receiving in the swimming classes at the Y. M. C. A. pool under R. H. Starkey, physical director. All expect to qualify as members of the Red Cross life saving corps.

Donald Gebhardt is the latest man to pass the life saving tests and qualify for membership in the corps. Mr. Starkey is district examiner and invites all swimmers who wish to become recognized officially as life savers to take the tests.

Life-saving no longer is an activity confined to a few who are experts in the water. A campaign is being carried on to make every man who can swim a trained rescue man.

All members of the Y. M. C. A. are being urged to enroll in the swimming classes on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays to receive the life saving training. Each is taught how to approach a drowning man without being seized and dragged under, how to swim ashore with a victim and what treatment to administer to restore breathing.

It is the aim of the Y. M. C. A. to make this summer the biggest on record in aquatic training.

Can You Lend This Ill Woman A Wheel Chair?

When the air is balmy, the sky is bright blue and the atmosphere filled with the perfume of spring, do you ever give a thought to those who are not able to enjoy the out-of-doors? Your attention is directed to a woman who has been ill for some time and for whom the doctor has ordered more out door air. She needs a wheel chair in order to get out but she is unable to provide it for herself. An effort is being made by Miss Bertha Schultz, county nurse, to provide the sick woman with the chair on wheels. Miss Schultz has appealed to the people of the community to lend a chair to this woman who deserves help. Anyone who can help in procuring a chair for her is asked to phone Miss Schultz at 37-R or a neighbor of the woman whose phone number is 2595.

JACK HERZOG TO MANAGE BRANDT BASEBALL TEAM

Former Manitowoc Star To Have Complete Charge Of Valley League Team

August Brandt Making Progress Rebuilding His Team for Taking Bigger Part in Pennant Chase—Play Green Bay Sunday.

Jack Herzog, formerly manager of the Manitowoc team of the Lake Shore league, has been appointed manager of the Appleton team of the Fox river Valley league and has taken complete charge of the team. It was announced Wednesday by Owner August Brandt. Herzog will be in Sunday's game and probably will have one or two new men with him.

The new manager, immediately after his appointment, began getting in touch with star ball players in all parts of the state and was confident that he will build the strongest team in the league in a very short time. Mr. Brandt has given him complete charge of the squad.

No announcement of new players will be made, it is said, until their contracts have been signed. Several of the men who are remaining in the city are working out daily in Brandt park. They are making an earnest effort to improve their hitting and are getting results. Their batting last Sunday showed considerable improvement over their efforts of the week previous.

MENASHA RIVERVIEWS AFTER STATE TITLE

The Menasha Riverviews, who for the past two years have established an enviable record among amateur baseball nine of this section of the state, are continuing their good work this season. Last Sunday afternoon they won their third consecutive victory from the Green Bay Packers.

The Menasha players are out to win the state amateur championship and are prepared to meet any amateur nine in the Badger state. They invite all teams of their class and will meet "all comers."

IF THIS PLAY COMES UP

Here's Your Decision

The fielder always has the right of way on a batted ball. If a fielder about to make a play on a batted ball by occupying a base runner's path, the base runner must run out of a direct line to the next base. In such a play there is no limitation as to how far the base runner can run out of line provided the fielder has not the ball in his possession. The one thing is, that he must avoid the fielder, regard less of how much he runs out of a direct line. If he fails to do so, and collides with the fielder about to field the ball, the umpire must call him out for interference.

INTERLAKES PUT IN HARD WORK FOR BLACK CREEK GAME

Fans Assured of an Excellent Ball Game in Interlake Park on Sunday

With the sting of two defeats handed him in his first two games of the official season of the Outagamie county league, Manager Gregory of the Appleton Interlakes is putting his men through a week of hard work preparatory for the game Sunday afternoon with Black Creek at Interlake park.

Black Creek is one of the league's strongest teams. While it is not among the leaders now, Black Creek has a team of real caliber and one that will make Gregory's squad stretch lively every minute.

Manager Gregory realizes this. Furthermore, while he was defeated by Kimberly, the defeat is not with out its blessing. It showed to Gregory and to his men as well, the glaring weakness of the local aggregation.

Accordingly the Pulpmill men started out Monday night to remedy these defects. Practice was held until a late hour and was repeated Tuesday and Wednesday. The same act will be gone through for the balance of the week and with several contemplated shifts and changes in his line up, Manager Gregory is confident his men will turn the trick in the coming fray.

Resides the defeat, one of the glaringly sad features of the contest Sunday afternoon was the small handful of fans that turned out to witness the game. Less than one hundred people saw the contest. It's much more difficult for a ball team to play before a small crowd of real backers and it is this fact, as well as the others mentioned, that contributed to some extent to the Appleton downfall.

The Outagamie county loop teams are playing real ball. The games are worth watching, to say nothing of the patriotic spirit that ought to prompt every Appleton fan who can to turn out next Sunday afternoon and at every home game of the county league entry. The attendance at the Appleton-Kimberly game was the poorest of any of the league games, and that in the city with the largest population.

Tygers Cop Deciding Game from Athletics—Heilmann Gets 2 Homers

Philadelphia — A home run by Pinch Hitter Flagstad, a walk, a bunt and singles by Egan and Bassler gave the Athletics three runs in the eighth inning, and the deciding game of the Philadelphia series on Wednesday, 7 to 6. Heilmann had home runs the first two times at bat. It was the first game in fifteen consecutive that Miller failed to get a hit. Score: Detroit 7, Philadelphia 6. Batteries: Ehmke and Bassler; Harris, Heilmann, Eckert and Miller and Perkins.

JOHNSON BEATS JONES

New York—Inability to hit with men on bases cost the Yankees a game with the Senators of Wednesday, 5 to 3. Walter Johnson had the better of Sam Jones, who was hit hard. Rice and Meusel hit home runs, but Ruth again failed to connect safely in five trips to the plate. Score: Washington 5, New York 3. Batteries: Johnson and Pinch; Jones and Schanz.

COLLINS BEATS INDIANS

Boston — Despite his numerous bases on balls, Warren Collins pitched effectively in the pinches on Wednesday. Boston defeating Cleveland, 6 to 2. Collins and his catcher, Harold Ruel each knocked in two runs. Slow thinking in the Cleveland infield handicapped Bagby's pitching. Speaker has a heavy cold and kept to his hotel. Joe Wood acting as manager. Score: Cleveland 6, Boston 2. Batteries: Bagby and O'Neill; Collins and Ruel.

TRACK SEASON AT HIGH SCHOOL ENDS THIS WEEK

With the completion of the annual inter-class track and field meet, athletics at the Appleton high school for the year 1922 were formally brought to an end. Incidentally, Coach A. K. Vincent, who has directed Appleton high school athletics for the last three years, turned out his last Appleton high school athlete for in June. Mr. Vincent will leave the local high school, to be replaced by A. C. Denny, now director of athletics at Neenah high school.

Appleton high school will not be represented in the 1922 annual Wisconsin interscholastic track and field meet in Madison Saturday afternoon.

Molla Meets Suzanne

Mlle. Lenglen

Mrs. Mallory

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, the American woman tennis champion, has gone to England, with a dual purpose. She will be a participant in the British championship tennis tournament at Wimbledon June 23. She hopes decisively to defeat Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the French champion.

If she succeeds in attaining these two objects she will be the unquestioned and unquestionable supreme champion in the game. It will be recalled that Mrs. Mallory and Mlle. Lenglen played at Forest Hills last summer and that Mrs. Mallory was winning, when in the midst of the contest, Mlle. Lenglen went all to pieces, between a violent and prolonged attack of coughing, and so it was said, of hysterics.

This gave the victory to Mrs. Mallory, but winning by default wasn't very satisfactory, especially as Mlle. Lenglen had previously beaten Mrs. Mallory in Europe.

The French woman is said to be in tip-top form at present. Mrs. Mallory hasn't played much during the winter, but she has had some practice in the past few weeks and expects to get more in the minor British tournaments prior to the Wimbledon matches.

There's a chance, however, that there'll be no Lenglen-Mallory meeting. Mlle. Lenglen is once more reported in poor health and it will depend upon her doctor's verdict whether she gives up the sport. With Mrs. Mallory already at sea, the French star, playing at Brussels, defeated Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California, 6-3, 6-2, for the international hard court championship.

LEONARD CLEARED IN TENDLER CASE

New York—After investigating the causes which have prevented a match between Benny Leonard of New York, world's lightweight champion, and Lew Tendler of Philadelphia, who has claimed the title, the New York state boxing commission announced on Wednesday that it would reserve decision until after the coming Tendler-Barrett match.

The commission established "beyond the shadow of a doubt," according to its statement, "that Leonard was ready to defend his championship against all challengers—Tendler preferred—on the basis of 37 1/2 per cent of the boxes share of the gate receipts to himself and 12 1/2 per cent to Tendler."

"Tendler's manager," the statement added, "refused these terms and demanded as his portion 20 per cent. The champion's offer stands open awaiting the acceptance by Tendler and his manager, the difference causing the disagreement, being 7 1/2 per cent."

It was said that the Dempsey-Willard fight was positively out of the question and that the "mixed" fight also would be barred, because there was no great demand for it.

The commission looks upon both fights as purely commercial propositions with no element of sport.

NEW JERSEY DOESN'T WANT HEAVYWEIGHT FIGHT

New York—Neither the Dempsey-Willard fight will be permitted in New Jersey, it was learned on Tuesday from Louis J. Massano, chairman of the boxing commission of New Jersey.

The commission looks upon both fights as purely commercial propositions with no element of sport.

Road Names In Country Are Puzzle To Everyone

Systematic Naming of All Highways Is Regarded as Important Need Here

One of easiest ways of getting into a bad tangle is to try to direct a person to some point in the country around Appleton. This does not become apparent until one tries to tell an autoist, for instance, what roads to drive over.

This situation results from the lack of systematic naming of rural highways leading out from Appleton. Only the state trunk roads that are numbered can be designated definitely when speaking of them. The suggestion therefore is heard often that the county ought to give each road an official name, the road ought to be labeled thus with a guide sign, and the public ought to be taught to call it accordingly.

Persons speak of the north highway leading to Kimberly as the "Kimberly road." This is contradicted by others, who say the road south of the river is called by that name. At least two highways are called "Freedom road," but now farmers on one of these routes have designated it Holstein road.

Neenah road is spoken of, but two highways lead there, one on each side of the river. Manitowish road, Lakeland, and Couperud also are confused with one another. This indefiniteness prevails in many other parts of the county.

One idea advanced by advocates of naming is to call each road by the place it leads to, so the name itself will be helpful in directing a person. Others believe officials names of other kinds should be adopted. This matter probably will be sprung on the county highway commission or the county board for attention if the agitation keeps growing.

ROSS AND MEYERS WILL GRAPPLE IN OSHKOSH

Eyes of the wrestling fans in the Fox river valley will turn Friday night to Oshkosh where Kid Rose, the Hoosier Bearcat, will attempt to wrest from Johnny Meyers, the world's light heavyweight wrestling champion. The match is scheduled for twelve rounds. Ross arrived in Oshkosh Wednesday, feeling fit as a fiddle and got right down to the business of putting on the finishing touches for his most important match.

Ross is extremely optimistic regarding his chances with the champion and declares that the weight of 158 pounds will weaken the champion who has been taking all of his matches at catchweights.

Ross is without doubt one of the most popular boys who have yet appeared in the valley. Meyers has held the title for over three years.

The advanced sale of tickets indicates that there will be a large turnout.

TRACK SEASON IS NEARING ITS END

Track and field work for 1922 in Wisconsin is drawing to a close. Only the "big" meets now remain. Saturday afternoon the Badger high schools will wind up their season's work in the annual state interscholastic track and field meet to be held at Madison, under the auspices of the athletic department of the University of Wisconsin. Some five hundred high school athletes, representing 62 high schools of the state, will compete. Walsh, Returns To Comiskey Park As Umpire

By Associated Press

Chicago—Ed Walsh, the pitching idol of the American league a decade ago when he was the "big moose" of the Chicago white Sox hurling staff, returned to Comiskey field today as a participant in a ball game for the first time since the season of 1916.

The old iron man who usually needed only one man in order to place the contest in the won column, was not a player however. He was one of the umpires assigned to the game between the Sox and the St. Louis Browns.

Walsh is working his first season as a major league umpire.

OKLAHOMA AVENUE WOMAN HAS GAINED REMARKABLE RELIEF FROM KIDNEY PAINS

What the Mayor of Indiana Metropolis Thinks About Trutona

Low Shank

"As a general tonic for building up a weakened, rundown condition of the system Trutona is without an equal in my opinion—I feel it's my duty to publicly recommend this remarkable medicine. Before using Trutona I had tried a number of remedies with out getting relief from my indigestion and constipation. Today, however I feel more able to attend to my duties and business than I have for years. As I said, I found Trutona a remarkable medicine for overcoming indigestion, constipation and a weak end system."

Above is the remarkable tribute paid Trutona by Mayor Low Shank, chief executive of Indianapolis, Indiana, a city of nearly 400,000 residents. Mr. Shank is known to thousands of people all over the United States and the fact that he has seen fit to publicly endorse Trutona is alone a wonderful tribute to the merit of this great tonic. The above should convince even the most skeptical that Trutona is truly a medicine of exceptional merit.

Lifelong Local Resident Says She's Also Found Trutona a Wonderful Bowel Regulator—Sure Others Will Get Same Relief.

"It's a certainty that anyone suffering from kidney troubles can't possibly go far wrong by taking Trutona—that's my firm opinion since using this wonderful medicine," emphatically declares Mrs. Charles Heinzl, wife of an employee of the Fox River Paper Co. and lifelong Appleton resident of 107 1/2 Oklahoma-ave.

"For several years," she said, "my kidneys had failed to function properly. I suffered such pains across my back and my kidneys were so sluggish in action. Almost ever since I can remember, I was always having to take laxatives to induce bowel action. But I have certainly gained a great deal of relief in only a short time, through use of Trutona. Why, the former very severe pains in my back are scarcely noticeable at all now and Trutona has greatly aroused the action of my kidneys. I found this medicine to be wonderful as a bowel regulator, too. In short I just feel lots better today and I'm sure that other sufferers will get the same relief from Trutona that I have."

For weeks Appleton men and women have been telling remarkable stories of how Trutona relieved them of stomach, liver, kidney, bowel or blood troubles, in many cases after other medicines had flatly failed. Unknown here a few months ago, today, hundreds of bottles of Trutona are being sold to local people which is surely a undeniable proof that Trutona is truly an extraordinary medicine. DIFFERENT from any preparation ever introduced here before and ONE that is destined to become a household remedy in hundreds of local homes.

USE OF LAXATIVES MOST DANGEROUS

Trutona Regulates Instead Of Merely Causing Action of Bowels—A Local Case

"For several years my son had complained of constipation—always having to take laxatives and although we spent considerable money on different medicine he didn't get relief, until recently when he began using Trutona and now he never has to take laxatives and tells me that Trutona has really given him the long sought-for relief from constipation" gratefully says Mrs. Fred Gehrmann, 554 Outagamie st., Appleton.

Is YOUR case like young Gehrmann's? Do YOU have to resort to strong purgatives to induce bowel action? No woman or child in this city or vicinity need continue to drag along under the great handicap of constipation. Countless people—scores of them right here in Appleton—have rid themselves of the dangerous and nauseating use of laxatives through Trutona's remarkable REGULATING effect on the bowels. As practically everyone knows, but few follow there is nothing that will so quickly undermine the health of any person as faulty bowel action. YOU can rid yourself of constipation in a perfectly natural and lasting manner, cho, by taking Trutona! Don't put it off—buy Trutona TODAY! YOU'LL be surprised at the quick improvement you'll notice.

TRUTONA IS GREAT SYSTEM BUILDER

Amazing Action On Mucous Membranes Makes Famous Tonic Extraordinary Reconstructive Agency

"I contracted a severe cold, during the last influenza epidemic which seemed to affect my entire system and my appetite had all but failed me. I coughed terribly at times and had become very weak and nervous when I began using this great medicine Trutona, but my terrible cough and cold has disappeared now, my appetite's greatly improved. I feel so much stronger and sleep just lots better. Since Trutona has given me this great relief I feel that I can hardly speak too highly of this splendid medicine." Thus speaks Mrs. H. A. Sanborn, wife of a local Woolen Mills employee, residing at 867 Morrison st.

Mrs. Sanborn's case furnishes a striking example of Trutona's remarkable reconstructive powers, due to its unusual action on the mucous membranes of the body. If YOU are weakened, rundown, suffer from nervousness, sleeplessness, anaemia, constipation, headaches, back side or chest pains, and the like Trutona is just what YOU need. A trial will quickly convince you of the remarkable merit of this famous tonic which is daily winning the unstinted praise of scores of YOUR HOME TOWN residents.

The Demand For Trutona, the Famous Vegetable Preparation, Though Already Astonishing, Continues to Increase. Hundreds of Appleton People Are Buying This Famous Stomach, Liver, Kidney, Bowel and Blood Remedy at SCHLINTZ BROTHERS' Drug Store, Where It is Highly Recommended.

Daisy Sten's Her Stuff by Jack Lait

THE soppy sentimentality in that mythical Utopia known as "Dixie," below the imaginary line irregularly drawn between the hard and heartless North and the soft and sunny South, which has been the occasion of much well-meant hokum on the part of tin-pan song-writers from Flatbush, play-writers from Greenwich Village, and picture-producers from Times Square, is just as good as though it were true.

When a thing becomes all but universally recognized, a fetish that it is almost heretic to question, there it is.

The South is, in truth, a great territory. It has flourishing cities, radio stations, automobile highways, skyscrapers and long distance service. It is rather remarkably like the North, except that in Winter it isn't as cold and in Summer it isn't as hot.

Exhaustive recent search on the part of your not-so-humble oversigned has utterly failed to disclose darkies singing on the levees, banjos strumming, Ephraim and Sammy or either, a boat named the Robert E. Lee or anyone waiting for it, mam-mies with fat arms wide open waiting for their rolling stones to roll home, or the Suwanee River in Kentucky, as is stated in the current Southland lyric hit. The Suwanee runs through Suwanee County, Florida, and is an uncommonly dirty and measly stream. A Kentucky home on the Suwanee shore, as pictured in the raging riot of best sellers at the sheet-music counters, might help its appearance some—and it would be about 1,200 miles long, which would furnish a comfortable living room on the main floor, where all the pickaninnies that the immigrants have apostrophized in gibberish song-poems could roll over and eat all the fried chicken prepared by all the lonely mam-mies with their arms wide open.

This point has been touched upon before, in reference to Dixie Daisy, who "featured" her Georgia accent as one of her main assets in squirming into the sympathetic good graces of "live ones, and squirming out of squeals, squawks, hum raps, falls and yammers—all of which are complaints to the police, in the soulless lingo of the flinty North, where the rolling stones are so numerous that it makes everything hard.

Daisy had rolled across the line, leaving the cotton and the corn and the sandy bottom and her mammy and old cabin door and maybe even Ephraim and Sammy, and had come up on the Robert E. Lee or some other steamboat plying the Mississippi's romantic waters to pour dividends into the jeans of sharks on lower Broadway.

Rolling was one of the best things that Daisy did. In crook parlance, and none could be more apropos of Daisy's activities, rolling means getting the roll; the roll being, by the same deplorable token, the accumulated moneys at any given time in the possession of any given chump.

Dixie Daisy, one of the cleverest single-handed pickpockets that the grand old South had ever turned out—by request—was not suffering with any home-again blues, and she didn't wish she was in Dixie. Daisy was not as ungrammatical as to wish that way. And, besides, she was getting by nicely.

She knew that Dixie was a sacred superstition. She knew that when a jazz band hit up "Livin' Stable Blues" or "Mobile Bay," the chambermaids of the upper half of a nation wept and the rackets stood up, recognizing them as national anthems. She knew that the North was paying and paying and paying for the unfortunate affair in the 60's, and that the map of the United States had standardized the song-hut below the belt. And so she blithely dipped along and grifted on, knowing that she could old-Southern-family herself out of any ordinary jam up.

And, in carrying on, Dixie Daisy had, in very workmanly manner, stripped the leather of one Joachim Tanowsky, late of Buda-Pest.

When I say she stripped the leather, I mean that she took out his purse, took the money out of the purse, and put back the purse. Can't be done? At the corner of Clark and Randolph streets, in the adorable city of Chicago, some years ago, a pickpocket "frisked" a famous citizen; he opened his overcoat, opened his coat, opened his vest, took out his bill-fold, took out $1,001, returned the bill-fold, buttoned the vest, buttoned the coat, buttoned the overcoat—all between the citizen's rising in the middle of a street car and getting off at the rear end—and got away. The citizen was Lincoln J. Carter—and he wrote crook plays for a living, so it was cheap at the price, though he never utilized it. A really accomplished operator can cut a man's leg off and he won't miss it for a week.

But when Daisy rolled Herr Joachim Tanowsky she had slightly easier picking. Herr Joachim wore a Prince Albert, which is still popular in Buda-Pest, and his slick calfskin port-money was in the tail pocket in the fold of the skirt, behind, which has been denominated in the sweet language of the underworld the "dip's delight" or "come-on kick." It is so easy that it is suspicious, and may be "salted."

Daisy observed Herr Joachim, in a restaurant, paying a check, taking a bill or two from a hefty wad, and replacing the pocketbook in the decoy pocket. It looked too soft to be safe. But she followed him and took a chance. There were no fish-hooks—she fanned the foreigner and generously clipped back the container. Pocketbooks and such may be identified; currency rarely can. And a sap will feel now and then to see if his bulky leather envelope is there, and if it is he feels safe. Pickpockets have worked out all these fine psychological points, as well as a few physical minutiae of technical application. And Daisy was a touch-system, noiseless, painless operator who knew all the secrets.

An hour or two later, Herr Joachim Tanowsky, having agreed to purchase at an absurd price a shiny brass watch from a man to whom it had been left as the last inheritance of his dying, titled mother, unfolded the bill-fold from his tail-fold, and let out a shriek for the police. His American dollars, which multiplied up into enough kronen to pay the national debt if Hungary ever came into its own, had disappeared.

A traffic policeman sent him to a station, and there, with a dignified yet vociferous vehemence, he told the desk sergeant of the amazing circumstance. The desk sergeant choked on his chew and assigned the matter to Detective Sergeant Albright, who snickered and said he'd see what could be done about it. He cross-quizzed the bereaved until he forced him to tell a few facts, over his indignant protest.

Herr Joachim clearly recalled the last time, before the discovery of the loss, that he had taken out his leather safety-deposit trinket, had been in the cafe. And, who had been near him at the time? Nobody—nobody that could help in this ghastly and astounding situation—only a charming young lady, very charming. Had she left the cafe at about the same time that Herr Joachim had left? Yes—she had; Herr Joachim had, for a moment, flattered himself that perhaps it was a little romance. But no; she had walked out behind him and half a block or so near him—just behind him—and then had hailed a taxi.

Albright questioned him minutely as to the very charming young lady's specific points, then coughed and said the victim would be advised when to appear at headquarters and identify the thief. Herr Joachim looked at him incredulously and dizzily. What thief? How could this roughly dressed stranger know who the thief had been, if, indeed, there had really been a thief. Who knew? He might have dropped the money in the cafe. The detective telephoned the cafe and inquired, but no money had been found.

"Ah—but are they honest in that cafe?" asked Herr Joachim, shrewdly.

"If they're not, it's taps like you that make 'em crooked," observed Albright.

Herr Joachim did not understand, so he wasn't affronted.

Detective Sergeant Albright journeyed by trolley, thence afoot, to a structure of impressive magnitude on the Drive. He entered, showed his shield to the colored elevator engineer, and went up to an apartment, where a stout, chocolate-colored servant of mammy proportions and pancake-flour suggestion stated that Miss Daisah was aout; would the gem'man sit down an' wait? Albright tartly denied that he was a gentleman, and declined to either sit down or wait. There were too many tip-offs known to him, whereby elevator engineers may be advised that unwelcome guests lurk within, so he figured he'd wait without, where nobody could wig-wag or punch buzzers handily.

He reached the walk just in time to see a trim, snappy form turn the corner, toward him.

The trim, snappy form saw him at the same time, suddenly remembered that it had business elsewhere, gracefully pivoted on one of its French heels, and strolled the other way.

Albright fell in behind it. The girl slanted a glance over her shoulder and realized she was being trailed. So she carelessly crossed the boulevard to the opposite side, and stood, with her back turned, gazing out over the rippling waters. Albright, as unconcerned, followed.

"Good evening, Daisy," he chirped.

"Why—haow ah you-all, Mistah Albright?" she gurgled.

"Better, thanks. How are all the folks down in Georgia?"

"Not so well, Mistah Albright. You see, gran ma's nevah been well since the woh."

"The woh?"

"Yes, sah—the civil woh. She still misses her slaves, and the ol' plantation has nevah been the same since Shehman came through."

"That's tough, Daisy," said Albright. "How'd you like to take a lil' trip with me down to headquarters?"

"Haidquawtahs? Man—you showly amusin'."

"Well, if it's a nifty, have your laugh. I just wanna take you down and let a few bozos give you the up an' down. They haven't seen anything as sweet as you in days. Come on an' slip 'em an' eyefull."

"What's the rap, Mistah Albright, if I'm not too fo'wad?"

"Oh, just a fawraner yodling the old, familar song."

"A fo'aneh? You shock me, Mistah Albright."

"Oh, I know you don't know nothin' about it, Daisy. But if you got the Jack you boosted often him on you, maybe you might better pony it across to me. It might break the fall—rest'ration o' prop'ty."

"Daon't make me laugh, Mistah Albright. If Ah had been so unladehlike as to put mah hand in the pocket of a strange gem'man, Ah wouldn't be so puddin'haided as to let you-all put yo' and asked, with phraseology studiously standardized to forestall any defense later that he had been influenced, signalled, mesmerized or misguided into an identification:

"Have you ever seen any of these women before?"

Herr Joachim adjusted his pince nez and started at the left end. His face was drawn into an expression of doubt and distress—until his eyes found Dixie Daisy, standing out like a morning glory in a muck heap. Herr Joachim's eyes stopped there. It was the little lady of the cafe!

Herr Joachim looked more searchingly. Daisy caught the look like the big league infielder she was, and, instead of dropping it, she relayed it right back for a lightning return and a double play; a play, indeed, that had never been seen, known or heard of in all the chronicles of police line-ups.

She stepped forward as though in a drawing room, and, with hand alluringly arched and extended toward the flabbergasted foreigner, she warbled:

"Haow'd you dyou—this IS a playurse suahly."

Albright felt himself rocking on his heels. He had lined up thousands. He had seen them drop their eyes and bite their lips conspicuously, and consciously try against nature and circumstances to appear unconcerned and inconspicuous. He had seen them faint before the gaze of the man they had robbed, realizing that he recognized and that it meant a long stretch up the river. He had seen them seized with hysteria, he had seen them make pitiful attempts to escape, he had seen them numb and dazed.

But never had he or any other flatfoot, within the memory of the oldest living veteran, ever seen a prisoner step forward and suavely greet the accusing rummy.

There were no rules to cover such a situation—no one had ever dreamed of it arising.

Herr Joachim, who knew less than nothing about precedent in this department of diplomacy, was just as staggered as though he were hep to the lowdown and versed on the etiquette of lining 'em up and dragging 'em out. He removed his hat with courtly continental courtesy, took a bend, and said:

"You—I—diss iss zo uneeghspegdet."

Detective Sergeant Albright recovered his official equilibrium, stepped in between the still upraised hand of Daisy and the rising hand of Herr Joachim.

"Can that racket, Daisy," said Albright sharply, "an' get back in line with the rest o' the party."

"Ah baig yo' padon, Mistah Albright—but this gem'man is an old fraind o' mah'n."

"Since when? I s'pose you're gonna tell me you was in touch with him this afternoon, havin' had diplomatic relations with him, huh?"

"Not at all. Ah met him abroad."

"While sojournin' with Her Nibs, the Queen o' Switzerland, on her yacht?"

"No. We met in—let me see—in—"

And Daisy turned her two brown Big Berthas on Herr Joachim.

"Was it in Paris?"

Tanowsky coughed. He was not a lightning thinker at any time, and the events preceding this stirring episode had already quite dumfounded him, and the last minute had quite knocked him kicking. He did not get out of range of the Big Berthas, however, and—was he seeing things, or did the left lid come down on one of them just for a wink, but quite definitely. It certainly did.

"Yess. It vass in Paris," he stuttered.

"Of co'se," breathed Daisy.

"And haow is yo' chaiming mother?"

"Bedder, tank you. And how iss your fadder?"

Albright turned completely around and back again. Then he walked to Joachim and took him by the lapel of the Prince Albert as he but shook him.

"That stuff is out here," he barked. "This here ain't no peacock alley—you're in a police station. I asked you one question—did you ever see any o' them women before?"

"Dosa womens? No—neffer."

"Or her—she's one o' them—that's the question."

"Dees lady? Oh, yes."

"Where?"

"In Paris," chirped Daisy. "Didn't you heah him say so?"

"Yess. In Paris."

"Well, I'll be— and then Albright swung suddenly on Tanowsky.

"If you know her so well, what's her name?"

Daisy stepped into the breach, trying to wheedle herself between Albright and her victim-knight, with no defined plan of bridging the name hiatus, but with at least one trump up her sleeve.

"Don't let him yell at you lak that, Mr. Tanowsky," she said, and Albright spun again, this time toward her. How did she know the man's name? Oh, drat it, he had called it out himself. That was one bone that would never happen again in that station. "Yo' not undah arrest yehah. That person has no raght to bawl at you."

"Thank you, Miss Daisy," countered Herr Joachim. "I tink, myself, he is a frish loaver, and I tink I see the consul from Hungary, vere Joachim Tanowsky has some raghts."

"Say," said Albright. "I know you're lvin', both o' you. The only time yez ever met was t'day, in a rest'rant, when she folered you out an' nicked you for your sugar. But, wise me—how'd you know her monicker?"

"I don't know vot iss that," said Herr Joachim. "I said her mother."

"You said her father. But be that as it ain't. What I wanna know is how you come to know her name was Daisy."

"She tells me—in Paris."

"Paris my cousin's pet cat. She never seen even Paris, Kentucky. Who jerried you that her name was Daisy?"

"Huh, you chump," laughed a slabsided delinquent back in the line. "You tipped it off yourself. Didn't you go up to 'er an' call 'er Daisy, right in front o' that Polack?"

"Did I do that?" demanded Albright.

"Ah don't remembah that you did, Mistah Albright," trilled Daisy.

"Get out o' here, both o' you!" shouted Detective Sergeant Albright. "I wanna say that when Dixie Daisy can talk herself out of an open an' shut brace with the help o' the soft egg she rolled for his yolk—specially a fawraner who don't know a Georgia line o' syrup from a Minnesota Swede's squirrel chatter, this here d'partment is comin' to a fine pass."

"Come, Herr Joachim," said Daisy. "We-all needn't stay yehah to listen to furbah insults and insinuations from this plebeian policeman."

"An' look out for your watch, you Hun," called Detective Sergeant Albright. "An' if you got any gold in your back teeth—"

But they were gone. Daisy, with her pretty arm snuggling in the crook of the right sleeve of the Prince Albert.

"They're a pack o' crows, an' there ain't a brain in the outfit. If there's anything I hate worse than a smart crook it's a stupid crook."

At about that moment Daisy was moaning into Herr Joachim's ear:

"Wasn't it terrible? To be brought into a place like that and accused of stealing? Me, from one of the best families in the South."

"Oh," chimed in Herr Joachim. "You are from de Sout? I am, too, from de Sout—from Hungary. Now ve have some liddle subber yes?"

"Yes," sighed Daisy. "We can talk of the Saouths—youahs and mine. And of Paris."

"Oh, dat vass a goot one. You know—I fooled him, dat bolliceman—neffer vass I in Paris in mine life."

"Aren't you the clever one!" exclaimed Daisy. "Ah'd like to see any one get the better of you."

"That's tough, Daisy. How'd you like to take a lil' trip with me down to headquarters."

naud in mahn. Ah think it a bankroll has been boosted once that's enough to fo' that day, Mistah Albright. Let's goo."

And they went.

Daisy was lined up with a polyglot potpourri of riffraff and ragtag, thieves and undesirables, feminine flotsam and juvenile jetsam, the cream of the women's section, skimmed from the day's combing of the seven seas of a great city's crime and shame and misfortune. She stood testily between a middle-aged badger worker and a she-hobo found snoozing in a hallway.

Herr Joachim Tanowsky had been telephoned for and had come.

"Bring in Tanowsky," roared Albright, with melodramatic ferocity.

He was brought into the "living-room" of the women's ward,

ATTEND MEETING OF "DRY" FORCES

Group of Appleton Men Hears Nationally Known Law Enforcement Speakers

More than a dozen Appleton men were in attendance at the convention of the Wisconsin Law Enforcement League in Milwaukee the last two days, some making the trip by automobile and others by train.

Those attending included Dr. Samuel Plantz, Judson G. Rosebush, Dr. J. H. Tippet, Dr. H. E. Peabody, the Rev. Ernest H. Wright, G. E. Buchanan, the Rev. Hugo Bernhardt, F. J. Harwood, Frank Sauberlich, the Rev. H. P. Jordan, George F. Werner and D. P. French, district Anti-Saloon League superintendent.

Nationally known speakers hampered efforts of the "wets" to cause relaxation in enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and a campaign was mapped out to prevent the staging of a wet campaign in Wisconsin. A staunch fight will be waged at the primary elections next fall to elect men who stand for law enforcement, it was said.

Mr. Harwood acted as toastmaster at one of the convention banquets.

Millinery

Graceful New Shapes for Summer and the Coming Holiday

LARGE HATS of graceful lines and exquisite colorings are a part of these special holiday showings. There are leghorns, hems, and peanut braid straws in such shades as periwinkle, jade, dente de leon, cherry, grey and navy. The brims are wide and droop gracefully. Gay flowers or fruits trim each hat in the most enchanting way. The lady above wears one of these hats for the outing of Decoration Day—and she will continue to wear it all summer. Modestly priced at $10, $12, and $15.

All Children's Hats — 25% Off

These children's hats are considered the most attractive ones in Appleton. They are all Priscilla Dean hats—and have been designed to look entirely different from the usual child's hats. Some are small and pert—others are large and feature clever trimmings. For the holiday—all of our children's hats are marked at reductions of ONE FOURTH OFF the regular selling prices.

White Hats for Summer

This week we have introduced an entirely new idea in millinery for Appleton—a white opening. There are hats of gorgette and crepe de chine, and others of plain straw with ribbon trimmings, but all are white. Some are trimmed with clouds of tiny white flowers, others have single large motifs of organdy—like the hat to the right. These charming hats are priced at $8. and upwards.
